

BIS Certification: Mandatory Products List

A Quick-Reference Guide to Products Requiring BIS/ISI Certification in India (2026)

Under Quality Control Orders (QCOs) issued by the Government of India, hundreds of product categories cannot be legally manufactured, imported, distributed, or sold in India without valid BIS certification. Selling or importing a covered product without certification can lead to seizure of goods, penalties, and customs hold-ups.

This guide lists the major product categories currently covered, the applicable Indian Standard (IS), and the certification scheme that typically applies. Use it to quickly check whether your product needs BIS approval before you manufacture, import, or launch it in India.

Note: QCOs are updated frequently and new product categories are added by different ministries throughout the year. This list covers major, well-established categories for quick reference. For the exact IS code and scheme applicable to your specific product, please confirm with our team before proceeding — requirements can vary by product sub-type, HSN code, and importer/manufacturer status.
